GAS GAS riders Cristophe Nambotin and Ludivine Puy were the great winners at The International Six Days Enduro in Portugal

The GAS GAS riders Nambotin and Puy were champions at the International Six Days Enduro (ISDE), one of the most important Enduro tournaments worldwide.

The test took place in Figueira da Foz, in Portugal, from the 12th to the 17th of October; and it gathered the best riders and teams from all over the world in a tournament which great atmosphere could only be that of these so-called Enduro's Olympic Games. The competition was held under the very characteristic hot weather of this part of Portugal at this time of the year.

France proved to be the best when its contestants beat the rest in both male and female categories. The two riders from GAS GAS played a very decisive role at the final victory. The male team, with Nambotin, got to the highest place at the podium, together with the riders from Italy and Finland -second and third place, respectively-; as in the female category, Ludivine Puy also got to first position, followed by those representing Sweden and Australia.

With respect to the individual categories, GAS GAS got first place with both of its two riders. Nambotin made history when he became the first GAS GAS rider to win this competition. As far as Ludivine Puy is concerned, she defended her title as the best female rider of the moment. The performance of these two riders meant the perfect finale for GAS GAS this weekend.

The person responsible for GAS GAS races, Carles Ferrer, evaluated the outcome of these two riders' performances in Portugal and was very positive about it: "They have both played a very important role in their teams and they have proved everybody that they are the best at what they do. What happened with Nambotin is particularly praiseworthy, since this is the first time one of our riders has got first place at the Enduro's Six Days competition.

Spain got first place in the Junior category, thus beating France, which got to the number one spot in the rest of the categories.
